WIA LANDING PAGE PLAYBOOK

Purpose

Use this Playbook whenever creating, reviewing, or revising landing page copy for paid advertising traffic.

This document defines Wedding Industry Ads' landing page methodology.

It is not a fill-in-the-blank copy template.

Every landing page must be tailored using the client's Client Marketing Profile and other approved client source materials. The structure and conversion principles may remain consistent across clients, but the messaging, positioning, voice, proof, differentiators, qualification language, and CTA should reflect the individual business.

The goal is not simply to produce attractive copy. The goal is to create a focused path from:

Ad click → relevance → interest → trust → desire → qualification → inquiry

---

1. START WITH THE CLIENT, NOT THE TEMPLATE

Before writing any landing page copy, review the Client Marketing Profile and available client materials.

Identify:

- What the business actually offers
- Who the page needs to speak to
- Geographic market
- Primary service or offer being advertised
- Ideal client's priorities and motivations
- Problems, concerns, frustrations, or uncertainties the client helps solve
- Desired experience and outcomes
- Meaningful differentiators
- Features and inclusions that matter to the buyer
- Proof and credibility
- Brand voice
- Voice of Customer language
- Pricing or investment information, when documented
- Qualification criteria
- Inquiry and sales process
- Appropriate next action

Do not invent missing information.

If information necessary to write strong copy is unavailable, identify the gap rather than filling it with generic wedding-industry assumptions.

---

2. DETERMINE THE TRAFFIC CONTEXT

Landing page messaging should reflect how visitors are arriving.

Google Ads Traffic

Google Search visitors are actively searching.

Prioritize:

- Immediate clarity
- Search intent alignment
- Service and geographic relevance
- Specificity
- Differentiators
- Decision-making information
- Qualification
- Strong reasons to inquire

The visitor should immediately feel:

"Yes. This is what I was looking for."

Do not make someone who searched specifically for a wedding venue, photographer, planner, DJ, or other service decipher what the business does.

Meta Ads Traffic

Meta visitors may be earlier in the decision-making process and did not necessarily initiate a search.

Prioritize:

- Continuity between the ad and landing page
- Emotional resonance
- Strong visuals
- Desire
- Recognition of what the buyer wants
- Clear explanation of the offer
- Credibility and trust
- A compelling reason to continue exploring

The page should continue the conversation the ad started.

Google + Meta Traffic

When one page serves both traffic sources, balance immediate clarity with emotional resonance.

Never sacrifice clarity for cleverness.

---

3. ONE PAGE. ONE AUDIENCE. ONE PRIMARY ACTION.

A paid-traffic landing page is a focused conversion experience.

It should have one primary goal, typically:

- Check availability
- Inquire
- Schedule a tour
- Request information
- Start planning
- Book a consultation

Avoid competing actions and unnecessary exits.

Whenever possible:

- Remove or minimize navigation
- Avoid unrelated links
- Avoid sending visitors elsewhere for basic information
- Repeat the same primary CTA throughout the page
- Make the inquiry path obvious

The landing page should answer:

"What do I do next?"

without making the visitor figure it out.

---

4. ABOVE THE FOLD

The first screen must orient the visitor immediately.

Whenever the client's available proof supports it, consider opening with a short, powerful testimonial or trust signal.

Then establish:

What is this?

Make the service or offer clear.

Who is it for?

Help the right visitor recognize themselves.

Where is it?

Include geographic relevance when location matters.

Why should I care?

Communicate a meaningful benefit, experience, outcome, or distinction.

What should I do next?

Include a visible CTA above the fold.

Headline Principle

Strong headlines combine clarity + relevance + benefit.

Do not default to vague wedding language such as:

- Where dreams come true
- Your perfect day starts here
- Creating unforgettable memories
- Bringing your vision to life
- Your dream wedding awaits

These phrases could describe hundreds of businesses.

Whenever possible, use something only this client could credibly say.

Subheadline

Use the subheadline to add specificity the headline cannot carry gracefully.

It may clarify:

- Location
- Service
- Audience
- Experience
- Outcome
- Important differentiator

Do not merely repeat the headline in different words.

---

5. SOCIAL PROOF & CREDIBILITY

Reduce uncertainty early.

Use documented proof such as:

- Client reviews
- Star ratings
- Awards
- Publication features
- Venue relationships
- Certifications
- Years of experience
- Number of weddings or events
- Relevant accomplishments

Prioritize specific proof over generic praise.

A testimonial describing the exact experience, concern, or outcome the ideal client cares about is generally more persuasive than:

> "They were amazing!"

Pull exact customer language when appropriate rather than rewriting every review into polished marketing language.

Never fabricate, embellish, or combine testimonials.

---

6. POSITIONING: WHY THIS BUSINESS?

The landing page must answer:

Why should this person choose this business instead of the other options they're considering?

Use the Client Marketing Profile to identify meaningful differentiation.

Potential sources include:

- Specialization
- Expertise
- Approach
- Process
- Experience
- Setting
- Service model
- Level of support
- Style
- Philosophy
- Unique capabilities
- Inclusions
- Convenience
- Flexibility
- Hospitality
- Personalization

Do not create artificial differentiation.

Avoid claiming:

- Unlike other...
- Most [competitors]...
- We're different because...

unless the underlying comparison is documented and defensible.

Instead, demonstrate the difference through specifics.

---

7. CONNECT FEATURES TO WHY THEY MATTER

Features and inclusions matter, but a list alone rarely communicates value.

For important features, ask:

So what does this allow the client/couple to experience, avoid, simplify, enjoy, or accomplish?

For example:

Feature: Indoor and outdoor ceremony options
Meaning: Couples have flexibility without needing to sacrifice the setting they imagined if weather changes.

The copy does not always need to explicitly state both pieces. Use this thinking to determine which details deserve emphasis.

Do not manufacture emotional benefits for every minor feature.

---

8. HELP THEM PICTURE THE EXPERIENCE

Wedding purchases are highly experiential.

Where supported by the client's positioning and customer language, help the reader imagine:

- What the experience feels like
- What becomes easier
- What they can stop worrying about
- What guests experience
- What the wedding looks or feels like
- How the service supports the day they want

Keep this grounded in the client's actual offer.

Avoid generic romantic prose that could belong to any wedding business.

---

9. INTRODUCE THE PEOPLE WHEN PEOPLE MATTER

Wedding professionals are often selling trust as much as a service.

When appropriate, include a concise Meet the Team or About section with photos.

Focus less on biography for biography's sake and more on:

- Relevant expertise
- Philosophy
- Personality
- Role in the client experience
- Why clients trust them
- What working with them is like

The reader should come away thinking:

"I can picture working with these people."

---

10. EXPLAIN EXACTLY WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

Reduce uncertainty around the inquiry process.

Use the client's actual process.

For example:

1. Tell us about your wedding

Complete the short inquiry form with your date and a few details.

2. We'll connect

We'll confirm availability and share the information you need to determine whether you'd like to continue.

3. Take the next step

Schedule the appropriate consultation, tour, or planning conversation.

Do not invent a three-step process simply because three steps look good on a landing page.

If the process is different, write the real process.

---

11. SELF-QUALIFICATION

A strong landing page should not merely maximize the number of inquiries.

It should help generate better-fit inquiries.

Where sufficient information exists, help visitors determine whether the business matches what they are looking for.

Qualification may involve:

- Location
- Budget
- Wedding size
- Style
- Service needs

- Date or availability
- Planning priorities
- Type of event
- Minimums
- Required services
- Experience expectations

This section should feel helpful rather than exclusionary.

The goal is:

"This sounds exactly like what we're looking for."

or, when appropriate:

"This probably isn't the right option for us."

Both outcomes can improve advertising efficiency.

---

12. PRICING

Do not automatically hide or automatically display pricing.

Follow the client's documented pricing strategy.

Pricing may appear as:

- Starting investment
- Average investment
- Package range
- Minimum
- Venue rental fee
- Per-person pricing
- Custom proposal language

FAQs can be an effective place to address pricing transparently without allowing price to dominate the page.

Never invent pricing.

---

13. FAQs SHOULD REMOVE REAL SALES FRICTION

FAQs are not filler.

Use questions that address genuine reasons a qualified prospect may hesitate to inquire.

Prioritize documented questions and objections from:

- Client FAQs
- Sales calls
- Inquiry conversations
- Reviews
- Client interviews
- Website content
- Client Marketing Profile

Potential topics include pricing, availability, travel, guest count, packages, customization, weather, booking process, turnaround time, service area, or other business-specific concerns.

Do not generate a generic wedding FAQ list merely to fill the section.

---

14. CALLS TO ACTION

Use one primary conversion action throughout the page.

CTA language should match the actual next step.

Examples:

- Check Availability
- Schedule Your Tour
- Inquire About Your Date
- Request Wedding Information
- Tell Us About Your Wedding
- Start the Conversation

Choose the CTA based on the client's sales process and audience.

Avoid unnecessary commitment when the actual next step is low commitment.

Repeat the CTA naturally throughout the page, especially after sections that give the visitor a new reason to act.

---

15. INQUIRY FORM

Keep the form focused.

Ask only for information needed to:

1. Respond appropriately
2. Qualify the inquiry
3. Track the lead effectively

Prefer easy-to-complete fields such as dropdowns and checkboxes when appropriate.

Do not create unnecessary friction by asking questions that could reasonably wait until later in the sales process.

The form itself should reinforce what happens after submission.

---

16. MOBILE-FIRST COPY

Assume a significant portion of paid traffic will experience the page on a phone.

Write accordingly.

Prioritize:

- Short paragraphs
- Clear section headings
- Scannable copy
- Easy-to-tap CTAs
- Concise forms
- Strong visual hierarchy
- Important information before excessive scrolling

Do not confuse "mobile-friendly" with "barely any copy."

Use enough copy to support the buying decision, but make it easy to consume.

---

17. VISUAL DIRECTION

Copy and imagery should work together.

Recommend imagery based on what the section needs to communicate.

Prioritize:

- The client's own professional imagery
- Emotionally resonant images

- Images that demonstrate the actual experience
- Real couples/clients where available
- Images that help prospects picture themselves there
- Team photography where personal connection matters
- Relevant details that support important selling points

Avoid generic stock imagery whenever strong client imagery exists.

Be cautious about unnecessary video or other elements that could compromise page speed.

---

18. RECOMMENDED LANDING PAGE FLOW

This is the default WIA framework, not a mandatory template.

Reorder, combine, add, or remove sections when the client's offer and buyer journey warrant it.

1. Trust Signal / Testimonial

Optional but powerful when strong proof exists.

2. Hero

Headline + supporting copy + CTA + strong visual.

3. Why This Business

Establish positioning and meaningful differentiation.

4. Experience / Desired Outcome

Connect the offer to what the ideal client actually wants.

5. Features / Services / Inclusions

Explain important elements and why they matter.

6. Social Proof

Reviews, awards, ratings, publications, statistics, or other credibility.

7. Meet the Team

Build personal trust when relevant.

8. What Happens Next

Explain the inquiry and booking process.

9. Is This Right for You?

Help the visitor self-qualify.

10. FAQs

Address decision-making questions and friction, including pricing where appropriate.

11. Final CTA / Inquiry Form

Give the visitor a clear next action.

The page does not need every section.

It needs every section necessary to make the decision to inquire feel clear and comfortable.

---

19. COPY STANDARDS

Landing page copy should sound like the client, not Wedding Industry Ads and not ChatGPT.

Follow the Client Marketing Profile's Brand Voice guidance.

Use:

- Natural language
- Specific details
- Customer language
- Concrete benefits
- Varied sentence structure
- Clear, confident statements
- Appropriate emotion
- Client-specific personality

Avoid:

- Generic marketing filler
- Excessive adjectives
- Unsubstantiated superlatives
- Clichés
- Fake urgency
- Overly polished corporate language

- Repetitive rhetorical questions
- Excessive fragments
- Formulaic "AI copy"
- Em dashes unless genuinely consistent with the client's voice
- "It's not X, it's Y" constructions
- "More than just..."
- "Whether you're X or Y..."
- "From X to Y..."
- "Imagine..."
- "Picture this..."
- "Your dream X awaits"
- "Look no further"
- "We've got you covered"
- "At [Business], we believe..."
- Repeating the business name unnecessarily

Do not force copywriting formulas when straightforward language is stronger.

---

20. SOURCE INTEGRITY

Use the Client Marketing Profile and approved client materials as the source of truth.

Documented Fact

May be stated as fact.

Voice of Customer

May be quoted or closely reflected when supported by source material.

Strategic Interpretation

May guide positioning and emphasis, but should not be presented as a factual claim unless supported.

Missing Information

Do not assume.

Never invent:

- Awards
- Statistics
- Reviews
- Pricing
- Inclusions

- Policies
- Years of experience
- Client counts
- Geographic reach
- Availability
- Guarantees
- Outcomes
- Differentiators

Flag unsupported claims before including them.

---

21. WHEN GENERATING A LANDING PAGE

Before drafting, internally determine:

Traffic Source:
Google / Meta / Both / Unknown

Primary Audience:
Who specifically is this page speaking to?

Primary Offer:
What are we asking them to consider?

Primary CTA:
What exact action should they take?

Primary Motivation:
What does this audience most want?

Primary Friction:
What may prevent them from inquiring?

Positioning:
Why this client?

Proof:
What supports the claims?

Qualification:
Who is and is not a strong fit?

Voice:
How should this business sound?

If these cannot be determined from the client materials, flag what is missing.

---

22. REQUIRED OUTPUT WHEN ASKED TO CREATE LANDING PAGE COPY

Unless instructed otherwise, deliver the page in build-ready order.

For each section provide:

SECTION NAME

Purpose:
Briefly state the conversion job of the section.

Copy:
Provide final recommended copy.

CTA:
Include when appropriate.

Visual Direction:
Briefly identify the type of image or visual that would best support the section.

Do not provide five interchangeable versions of every headline or paragraph unless requested.

Make strategic decisions.

When there is a meaningful alternative worth considering, explain why rather than generating options simply for volume.

---

23. FINAL QUALITY-CONTROL CHECK

Before delivering landing page copy, verify:

Clarity

Can a visitor immediately understand what the business does, who it serves, and where relevant, where it operates?

Ad Continuity

Does the page make sense for the traffic source and likely ad promise?

Specificity

Could this copy belong to five competitors with only the business name changed?

If yes, make it more specific.

Positioning

Is there a compelling, supportable reason to choose this business?

Customer Relevance

Does the copy focus on what the ideal client values rather than merely describing the company?

Proof

Are meaningful claims supported?

Qualification

Does the page help attract the right inquiries rather than every inquiry?

Friction

Have major questions or objections been addressed?

CTA

Is the desired next step obvious and repeated?

Voice

Does it genuinely sound like this client?

Mobile

Can the copy be scanned easily on a phone?

Accuracy

Has anything been invented or overstated?

If so, correct it before delivering the page.

CORE PRINCIPLE

Follow the WIA conversion framework. Do not force the client into WIA's words.

The strongest landing page should feel unmistakably like the client's business while quietly applying the strategy and conversion principles in this Playbook.